FALL 2021 HOUSING

We know that housing information is deeply important to both incoming and continuing Emory students and their families. Housing selection occurs each spring semester to allow students the opportunity to return to university housing in the fall.

Like you, we are excited about fall semester 2021 and hope to provide additional details soon. Before we can release additional information, however, we must finalize several key institutional decisions. For example, Emory is currently reviewing the 2021-22 academic calendar, including the start dates of the term. In addition, Emory's plans for greater density on campus this fall require ongoing communications with health care and public health experts and campus partners to help ensure a safe and healthy semester for all our students.

For these reasons, the housing application and selection process is not yet available. We anticipate having more information toward the end of March and will provide updates to students when we have more details about the housing application and selection timeline and process.

Emory will continue to provide housing for students who have a demonstrated need to live on campus. We apologize for any inconvenience this postponement may cause.
